The authors of the Playbook want to thank the hundreds of coaches and athletes who helped in its development. Each day we were inspired by the deep and meaningful relationships that coaches have with their players, as well as by the relentless desire of the players themselves to grow up to lead safe, healthy and productive lives.

We also drew inspiration and guidance from those already working in the field of sports to teach and promote leadership. Much appreciation goes to leaders like Jackson Katz and Don McPherson for their pioneering work in schools and athletic programs across the country.

It is our hope that the Coaching Boys Into MenSM Playbook will add to and enhance the information available to coaches to help them guide the youth of today and tomorrow toward healthy, respectful, nonviolent relationships.

Dear Coach:

Many people judge our athletic accomplishments by counting wins and losses, but to us, our legacies are much more personal. Our legacies are defined by the number of lives we are able to impact.

Winning games is important to every coach. However, it shouldn't be our only goal. A big part of the job is helping to develop solid, responsible athletes who are able to become upstanding citizens. When we, as coaches, can teach a group of individuals to care as much about each other as they do about themselves, we have truly created a winning team.

Athletics has always been at the forefront of social change. Playing sports has helped our country break down barriers of segregation and racism; it brings the world together during times of war and provides inspiration and optimism when the public needs it most. Today, you are being called upon to address a major problem: violence against women. Nearly one third of the women in this country will experience physical or sexual abuse in their lifetimes. One in five teenage girls admits to having experienced dating violence. Domestic and sexual violence is a pervasive problem affecting your athletes, as well as people in all of society.

Demeaning, disrespectful and violent attitudes toward women are underlying causes of other major societal ills such as school violence, community violence and crime.

This is not to say that athletes are more prone to violence than nonathletes, but as powerful leaders in schools and society, athletes can help affect change by understanding and representing core values of respect.

Every coach is in a position that allows him to directly influence the attitudes of his athletes and to help eliminate disrespectful perceptions of women and girls that are at the heart of this tragic problem. The purpose of this Playbook is to provide you with coaching tips, advice and useful anecdotes from great coaches and players to help you confront this issue head on.

By coaching boys into men, you will help lay a solid foundation for your players' lives that will be remembered far longer than any win in any column.

Sincerely,

Joe Torre

INTRODUCTION

Boys need role models; they need mentors, teachers and coaches to give them guidance that will help them grow into healthy young men.

They need to know that, in the long run, who they are in society is more important than who they are as a player.

Michael Jordan has described coach Dean Smith as a “second father” and long-time coach Phil Jackson as his friend. Jordan is just one of countless athletes whose life has been changed forever by contact with great coaches. Whether it’s in speeches to the team, practice sessions or simply casual conversation, coaches have many opportunities to impart their philosophies to athletes. It doesn’t matter if you’re coaching basketball or golf, your players look to you for leadership, guidance and instruction. Coaches have a truly unique platform for delivering a message.

Great coaches teach integrity, self-respect, discipline, teamwork and respect for others. These are all traits and skills that are just as important in life as they are on the field. Hundreds of coaches designed the Coaching Boys into MenSM Playbook to help you extend your valuable teaching to include a healthy respect for women and the values present in strong, nonviolent relationships.

PLAYBOOK GUIDE

Section 1

PlaybookGuide

Winning at sports requires force, aggressiveness and, at times intimidation. Unfortunately, a lot of young men don't realize that game strategies don't necessarily translate in real life. By teaching your athletes that young women deserve to be treated with honor and respect and that violence does not equal strength or manliness, you will help your young men draw these important distinctions between games and life.

The Coaching Boys into MenSM Playbook is divided into the following sections:

Define the Playing Field and Take The Pledge

- Informs you about the disrespectful attitudes and abusive behaviors that can lead to violence against women and provides a preseason game plan for addressing these issues with your team.
- Affirms your team's commitment to ending violence against women by pledging to end it.

THIS SEASON COMMUNICATE THAT YOUR PLAYERS' GOALS WILL INCLUDE:

- 1) Learning to treat women with honor and respect
- 2) Understanding that violence never equals strength
- 3) Using this knowledge to become role models

Capitalize on Teachable Moments

- Provides realistic scenarios designed to help you plan ahead for incidents when you find yourself needing to mentor and guide your players. Each Teachable Moment explains how to Make a Defensive Play by addressing the immediate situation; it also shows how to Design Your Offense, using the situation to deliver a broader team-wide message about the positive values and behaviors that can stop violence before it begins.

Go into Overtime

- Suggests team activities that express the team's commitment to preventing violence against women and builds awareness of the issue in the school and the community at large.

PLAYING FIELD

“In sport and in life values and attitudes are as important to winning as are strength and endurance.”

— John Thompson III
Head Coach, Georgetown University

Section 2

PLAYING FIELD

Playing Field

Athletes will tell you that in football the playing field is 120 yards by 53.3 yards. In baseball, there is an infield, outfield and a diamond of four bases. When it comes to violence against women, the playing field consists of attitudes and behaviors that may, on the surface, seem playful or harmless, but they lead to an environment that is disrespectful and dangerous. The good news is that the attitudes that support violence are preventable.

Sexual innuendoes, sexist jokes, catcalling and harassment not only cause immediate pain to the recipient but serve to shape long-term attitudes that can lead to tragic consequences. When you witness these or any other forms of inequity and/or stereotyping, it's important to address them immediately.

Set Your Objectives

The first official day of practice is a special day. It is in that period of time prior to the opening game that you do much of your teaching. It is when you implement strategy, formulate goals, communicate expectations and lay the foundations for team chemistry.

It's also the ideal time for you to define the playing field for your players regarding violence against women.

You may want to include the following in your own preseason speech:

COACH: Hey guys you know I care about how you play on the field, but, I also care about how you act off of it, too. A lot of people look up to you and with that attention comes the responsibility to treat people right. So, we're doing things a little differently this season. I'm going to pretend that every girl you meet is my niece. I want you guys – each and every one of you – to be respectful and courteous to girls. I don't want to hear you catcalling, or lying or bragging about your dates. And, it's especially wrong to hit a woman or force yourself on anyone. Have some integrity and show that you're a strong man by treating women with honor and respect. You should expect the same from your teammates, too.

“The most important quality I look for in a player is accountability. You’ve got to be accountable for who you are.”

— Lenny Wilkens
NBA Hall of Fame Player and Coach

PLEDGE

Remember, there is no single right way to teach boys to honor and respect women and to inform them that violence is neither a solution nor a sign of strength. The point of the Coaching Boys into MenSM Playbook is that you deliver the messages in your way, in your voice. Nothing else will resonate more with your athletes.

To affirm your team’s commitment to ending violence against women, consider signing with them the following declaration:

Coach and Player Pledge

I believe in treating women and girls with honor and respect. I know that violence is neither a solution nor a sign of strength. I believe that real men lead with conviction and speak out against violence against women and girls. I believe that I can be a role model to others by taking this pledge.

Post your team’s pledge in the gym, place it in the school newspaper or simply sign the pledge cards in the back of this book.

Learn the Basics

DAMAGING BEHAVIOR AND LANGUAGE

Coaches are masters of communication. A coach in California describes himself as an orator while another in Maryland sees himself as a storyteller. Coaches use language to lead, instruct and inspire. Indeed, a few well-chosen words before a game or at halftime can strike the emotional chord that makes the difference between victory and defeat.

Language can be as powerful when it is used in a negative way. Put-downs and derogatory jokes may seem innocent, but when they cross the line they can make someone feel inferior, intimidated or even violated. Damaging Behavior and Language can include:

- ▶ Singling out a person's gender, race, ethnicity or other personal traits/characteristics (such as sexual orientation, age or disability) when it has no direct bearing on the topic at hand
- ▶ Using gender to insult (e.g., "You throw like a girl.")
- ▶ Bragging/joking about sexual exploits as conquests
- ▶ Lewd or foul behavior (e.g., catcalls, whistling, sexual innuendo)
- ▶ Derogatory language toward women (e.g., calling women or girls names that relate to their sexual activity or appearance)

ABUSE

There is no single factor that determines when certain language or behavior crosses the line to become abusive. But it is essential that your players understand that abuse can come in many forms. Following are definitions of abuse and examples of how abusive behavior might appear so you can recognize the signs and take action:

PSYCHOLOGICAL OR EMOTIONAL ABUSE

- ▶ Humiliation, (e.g., berating, name calling)
- ▶ Controlling a person's actions (e.g., always speaking for them, making all decisions for them)
- ▶ Deliberately doing something to make someone feel diminished or embarrassed (e.g., "panting" someone in public)
- ▶ Isolation (e.g., convincing a group to completely shut out another person)
- ▶ Intimidation (e.g., verbal threats, punching walls, and so forth)
- ▶ Unwelcome or uninvited comments (e.g., catcalls, sexual innuendo, comments about the body, and so forth)

PHYSICAL AND SEXUAL VIOLENCE

Examples include: scratching, shaking, choking, pinching, throwing, shoving, pushing, biting, grabbing, slapping, punching, burning, rape, use of a weapon, use of restraints or one's body size or strength against another person, use of physical force to compel a person to engage in a sexual act against his or her will.

Note: Many schools have strict policies defining abuse, physical and sexual violence and harassment. In some school districts, state laws apply to coaches and teachers who witness abusive or violent behavior. Laws vary by state. Check with your school administrator or state to find out what reporting requirements apply to you. Remember that in every state, if you witness any student who uses a weapon against another, you must report it.

40% of girls say they know someone who has experienced dating violence

STAYING ON THE SIDELINES

Staying on the Sidelines is when one player observes one of his teammates using hurtful behavior or language or even committing a violent act yet fails to intervene.

Though most young adults say they would take action if they saw obvious physical or sexual abuse, they are less comfortable intervening when the abuse is less overt or involves their teammates. Their instinct tells them it is wrong, but they do not have the tools or resources they need to intervene. Encourage your athletes and empower them to recognize and reject hurtful behavior and confront it even if it comes from a teammate. Let them know that anyone can talk to you about anything at any time without consequence.

Staying on the Sidelines while harmful incidents occur condones the behavior.

TEACHABLE MOMENTS

“We live in a very difficult time for young kids...there are so many things coming at them that it’s important to have good values and to be grounded. Teens need to know what counts and what doesn’t.”

— Pat Riley

Coach, Miami Heat

Section 3

Teachable Moments

As a coach, you're used to planning for potential game scenarios. The goal is to be able to react quickly, minimizing the opposition's gain and turning the situation to your team's advantage.

Even with the best offense, coaches need a good defense to react to situations that may threaten the success of the team. The same thing holds true in life. Certain situations or behaviors that occur with your players will be out of your control to prevent, but they also provide you with the opportunity to talk to the rest of the team, offer support, and try to right any wrongs.

Coaching Boys into MenSM works the same way; when serious problems occur, they need to be isolated and addressed, but the situation also provides an opportunity to deliver a message to the entire team about positive attitudes, values and conduct.

MAKE A DEFENSIVE PLAY to immediately address inappropriate behaviors and attitudes.

DESIGN YOUR OFFENSE to take advantage of opportunities to prevent the spread of negative perceptions toward women and girls.

The Teachable Moments on the next few pages, illustrate some key themes in the Coaching Boys into MenSM program.

“Locker Room Chatter”

Teachable Moment

After an easy win against a rival school, your team is getting showered and changed to catch the school bus. A few of your athletes including Jeremy, the team captain, are lingering around the locker room. You walk by as Jeremy starts talking about his date with Monique. He brags about his advances with her in the car last night: “She kept saying, ‘No,’ but I knew she meant ‘Yes.’ She’s easy, you know... and you know what they say... three times a charm... once she said, ‘Maybe,’ I knew I was in.” Some of the boys laugh and slap each other high fives in agreement.

COACH CHALK TALK!

Talking about a girl’s sexual reputation

≠ Innocent fun

Disrespectful attitudes about women aren’t just wrong, THEY’RE DANGEROUS!

When a woman or girl says, “No” in any sexual situation, that means NO! EVERYTIME. THAT’S WHAT’S RIGHT, AND THAT’S THE LAW!

Make a Defensive Play

Address the situation immediately.

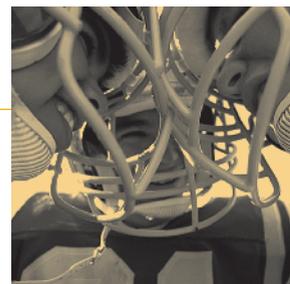

COACH: Jeremy, I heard what you were saying and you need to know how wrong that is. First of all, if a woman says, “No” to any kind of advances on your part, you back off. It’s not just the respectful thing to do — it’s the law.

Second, a real man doesn’t go around bragging or telling stories about women. You’ve got a sister don’t you, Jeremy? How would you feel if you heard someone saying she was “easy”? How would you feel if her boyfriend didn’t pay any attention when she said, “No”? I’ve talked to you guys a lot about what I expect of your conduct, on the field and off. Treat people the way you’d like to be treated. Honor and respect them the way you do your teammates. And Jeremy, you’re a team leader; you might want to think about the way you’re leading.

Design Your Offense

You can go on the offensive with this scenario by making sure that the entire team knows that certain attitudes and behaviors toward women are unhealthy and dangerous.

- ✓ At the next scheduled practice, take a few minutes to explain that their behavior off the field affects the team as a whole.
- ✓ Remind them that teammates should confront each other if they think someone is involved in a situation that’s disrespectful to women or girls.
- ✓ Give them opportunities to come talk to you.
- ✓ Define your views on what it means to be a man. Explain that while aggressiveness has a place in sports, acting this way in real life toward girls crosses the line; a real man knows that “No” never means “Maybe” .

“Time Out”

Teachable Moment

During a time out at practice, Jennifer, a freshman on the tennis team, is walking alone across the gym floor toward the east entrance. She’s known to the guys to be attractive. While you’re adjusting the VCR to show your players a video on teamwork, some of your boys in the back notice Jennifer and start howling, whistling and making inappropriate comments. You notice that she is uncomfortable and perhaps a little scared, but she holds her head up and continues through the gym.

COACH CHALK TALK!

No woman “ASKS” for sexual innuendo or harassment—not through looks, clothes or makeup.

Catcalling isn’t funny; it’s disrespectful and cowardly.

Would your players want their MOTHER, SISTER OR GIRLFRIEND treated that way?

Make a Defensive Play

Step in as soon as the behavior starts.

COACH: All right, cut it out!

PLAYER 1: Coach, we’re just playin’. Besides, look how she’s dressed. She’s askin’ for it.

COACH: Catcalls and jeering aren’t playing. And how somebody dresses isn’t asking for anything.

PLAYER 2:

But Coach, she’s hot!

COACH:

If you like the way she looks, wait until after practice and go up and tell her – by yourself. She might even appreciate it. What you guys were doing was just trying to impress each other with how funny you are. That’s not the way we impress each other on this team. We do that by treating each other with honor and respect and by treating women the same way. Is that clear?

TEAM:

Clear, coach!

Design Your Offense

Taking the time to put an end to what your players may have viewed as innocent fun is a preventative step toward educating boys about respecting women and girls.

- ✓ Explain that taunting women and girls is degrading and that girls should not be belittled because of how they look or what they choose to wear.
- ✓ Mention that most girls do not welcome that type of attention and are probably fearful of defending themselves.
- ✓ Point out that, as members of a team, they should know how important it is to respect others. Tell them that the same holds true in real life and that they must always think about how their actions affect other people.
- ✓ Finally, let them know that the men you admire are those who treat women and girls with honor and respect.

“American Idol”

Teachable Moment

It's in all the papers, headlining the evening news every night and people can't stop talking about it. A prominent professional player has just been charged with assault of a woman. There have been graphic pictures shown on the news of her injuries and some unpleasant accounts from witnesses have come out in the media.

COACH CHALK TALK! Your players know about it, so address it. Let them know:

Allegations \neq Guilt or Innocence (courts will decide)

BUT Great athletic talent is NO excuse to disrespect women.

Guilt or innocence aside, use the situation to raise team awareness about violence to women.

Make a Defensive Play

They're already talking about it. Let them know how you feel.

COACH: I'm sure you've all seen or heard the stories about the situation _____ is in. I know for a lot of you, it's hard because he's your favorite player, and he's one of mine, too. In a situation like this, lots of people are going to make up their minds right away whether they think he's guilty or innocent, and that may be the case with some of you. But I want you to know that's not our role. That's for the courts to decide. But I will say this: whether he's innocent or guilty, I've talked to all of you about the importance of treating women with honor and respect and that violence is never an alternative. If it turns out that that's what _____resorted to, no championship rings or triple doubles can make up for it. He's lost my respect as a player and as a man. And he should lose yours, too.

Design Your Offense

If a court finds an accused athlete guilty, it's a crucial time to reinforce the message to your team that no matter how talented and successful you are, you are still responsible for your actions.

- ✓ Ask your athletes if this professional player is truly such a great player if he's bringing his team down with him.
- ✓ Communicate your feelings about violence against women and why it's always wrong.
- ✓ Point out professional players who have taken a public stand against violence.
- ✓ Explain that sometimes men and boys feel that using their power and strength against others is proof of their manhood. Tell them that real men would never do that.

“Backhand”

Teachable Moment

It's Saturday morning and your team has just arrived for a meet at a neighboring school. On the bus ride, you were busy going through the event schedules. You thought you noticed that the normally rowdy back-of-the-bus gang seemed unusually low key. Once you arrived at the meet, you noticed more hushed conversations. You pull one of your athletes aside and ask what's going on. He replies that one of his teammates, Ray, slapped his girlfriend with the back of his hand after last night's rally.

COACH CHALK TALK!

You can't control your players' actions off the field — but you can respond.

*If it's an action that should be reported, REPORT IT!

*If it's an action that calls for team discipline, ENFORCE IT!

*If it's a rumor, LET THE TEAM KNOW WHERE YOU STAND ON THE ISSUE!

Make a Defensive Play

You've made clear to your athletes what the consequences will be if they are caught drinking, smoking or doing drugs during the season, but are they aware of the consequences of committing a violent act against a woman? Even if the assault takes place during off-hours, your role as coach goes beyond the sport.

- ✓ Confront Ray directly, but privately, to find out what happened.
- ✓ Speak to Ray seriously about hitting girls. It's NEVER okay to hit a person with the intent to harm.
- ✓ If you feel that an assault occurred, it's your responsibility to report it to the proper authorities, even if it involves one of your players.
- ✓ Find out what your school policy states regarding violence.

If it is found that Ray did commit an act of violence, enforce your own penalties in addition to the school's disciplinary actions (e.g., suspension or expulsion from participation). Explain the importance of getting help and accepting responsibility for his actions.

Note: Many schools have strict policies defining abuse, physical and sexual violence and harassment. In some school districts, state laws apply to coaches and teachers who witness abusive or violent behavior. Laws vary by state. Check with your school administrator or state to find out what reporting requirements apply to you. Remember that in every state, if you witness any student who uses a weapon against another, you must report it.

Design Your Offense

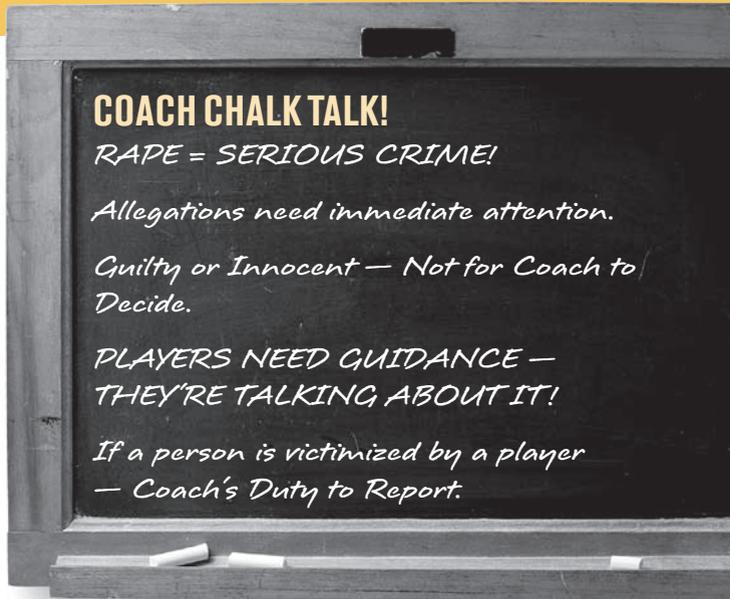

A glance at the daily paper reveals that violence against women and girls is a tragic reality in our society. If an incident occurs at your school or on your team, it's an opportunity to shape the perceptions of the rest of your team.

- ✓ At the next gathering, tell your team that you recognize that whatever is happening in your players' lives will affect their individual play and, consequently, their contribution to the team.
- ✓ Let them know that although some athletes may not want to be role models, others in the school may still see them that way. It's critical that athletes are aware that abusive or violent behavior against women and girls makes a negative statement.
- ✓ Reiterate that you fully expect them to respect women and girls in any and all situations.

“Out of Bounds”

Teachable Moment

In her statement, Sandra, a student, says Shane invited her to a post pep-rally party. Shane, your star player, and Sandra were seen hanging out talking and laughing, and they later disappeared into the night. The next week, Sandra doesn't show up to school, and when she does, she reports Shane raped her. He tells you the sex was consensual. Some of your players support his story and others aren't talking at all.

Make a Defensive Play

If you are the first to become aware of the allegations, immediately contact your school administrators. Leave it to them to investigate the charges.

Design Your Offense

It's likely that the whole team is talking about it. Your players are probably worried, angry or confused. Speak to the rest of the team about the seriousness of the allegations and how it relates to their own future conduct.

- ✓ Make it clear that allegations of rape are extremely serious and that it is the school's responsibility to investigate the situation further and to alert the police.
- ✓ Often rape is perceived as a sexual act against another person. Clarify that rape is an act of violence. Refer to your team's pledge to treat women and girls with respect and to never resort to violence. Make clear that when it comes to sex, girls always have choices.
- ✓ Tell them that athletes aren't above the law. First and foremost, they are members of society and role models. Just because they are talented in sports doesn't mean they are immune from following the law.

“There’s nothing better than excelling at a game you love. There’s nothing worse than thinking your accomplishments as a player outweigh your responsibilities as a person.”

— Doug Flutie
Former NFL Quarterback

OVERTIME

Overtime

By the time the season ends, you will have helped shape players who are committed to respecting women and girls and who know that violence against women is never a solution or a sign of strength. If you and your team are interested in taking it to the next level, you could look for ways to share this important message with the fans, school and community.

Below are some ideas for activities that we suggest for your team, school and community. Be sure to involve your school administrators, athletic department and sports medical staff. They may be able to help advance your efforts.

Host a Pledge Drive

Encourage your coaching peers and the entire student body to sign The Pledge. It's a great opportunity for your players to express their commitment and build awareness as they work at getting the pledges signed.

Mentor Other Youth

A high school basketball team in Boston, Massachusetts, regularly invites the local middle-school team to observe their practices and games during the season. Your players could become mentors of their own middle-school kids, modeling positive behavior by spreading the message of coaching boys into men.

Stay on Course

Next year's varsity team heard you this season, but what about the rookies? Make sure they hear you next year. Remember to reaffirm the messages of Coaching Boys into MenSM by taking a new pledge and keeping your eyes and ears open for Teachable Moments. Ask the returning players to help champion the message to the incoming players.

Let us know what you and your team are doing to end violence!

Build a Violence Prevention Curriculum for the School

Take these themes further by introducing training sessions for youth. There are many organizations that can provide guidance and materials specific to young adults on the subject of violence prevention. (See Resources for references.)

Create a School Campaign

Develop a full-blown school campaign against violence. Develop messages, posters, brochures that describe the tenets of the program and your team's role.

Amend your School Policy

Put together a panel of athletes and educators to review any official school policies on physical or sexual violence, psychological or emotional abuse and sexual harassment issues. Suggest improvements or amendments to the policies or offer to help extend the breadth of a particular policy through a written proposal to the school board.

To affirm your team's commitment to ending violence against women, sign this declaration with them and send it to us!

Coach and Player Pledge

I believe in treating women and girls with honor and respect. I know that violence is neither a solution nor a sign of strength. I believe that real men lead with conviction and speak out against violence against women and girls. I believe that I can be a role model to others by taking this pledge.

I was in my 50’s before I truly realized how much this experience has impacted my personality and relationships. But the cycle can be broken.
